

Commence Corporation Releases Enhanced Version of Desktop Software

April 3, 2025 – Eatontown, NJ – Commence Corporation, a provider of CRM software and application development tools, has announced the release of RM 9.0, an enhanced version of the company’s popular desktop software. There are several significant enhancements in this release including the ability to communicate and synchronize data using different methods, such as LAN or FTP server. This feature provides expanded communication methods and now works with file sharing services such as Dropbox, Google Drive, and Microsoft OneDrive.

The mobile link feature has now been integrated with Commence’s cloud-based CRM platform. This enables you to share Commence Contacts, Calendar, and To Do’s on your desktop with our cloud technology. The feature will enable you to access specific Commence data anytime, anywhere, and from any device. Furthermore, this data now accessible via the cloud will be presented in an easy-to-use, web-browser format.

Commence RM can now be implemented as a Windows Service. This new feature enables Commence administrators to leverage the standard Windows infrastructure to enable the Commence server to run automatically when the server hardware is rebooted or restarted and run in the background without user intervention.

Other enhancements include:

- Mail merge preference for destination
- Whitelisting for the Commence Email Dropbox
- Improved Microsoft SharePoint and OneDrive for Business Integration
